

PR Consultant – CALA & Latin and South American Focus

Calysto Communications, a boutique public relations agency with a focus on communications, is looking for PR consultants with experience in the Latin American and South American markets. The ideal candidate is an experienced PR professional with telecom experience (preferred) or technical experience (required), who is looking for some flexibility in his or her schedule or has their own PR consultancy. We need you to be a strategic thinker who is not afraid to jump in and pitch if necessary. You will be given one or two accounts to manage on your own time, including strategic planning, ideation and media relations. You've had PR agency experience and are a multi-tasker with a healthy respect for deadlines and client demands. You also like to travel.

Your degree is in Public Relations, Communications, or a related field. You have PR agency experience and a proven track record of how strategies and/or you've developed have gained industry exposure or meetings with analysts at tradeshow. Your leadership, interpersonal and communications skills are worth writing home about. Managing budgets is not a problem for you and you understand how to up sell your clients on opportunistic initiatives. You will work from your home office.

Contact Name: Human Resources

Contact Email Address: kfbennett@calysto.com

Special Instructions: Include cover letter, resume and writing sample.